

EARTHSTOCK 2017

JUST EAT IT DOCUMENTARY

4/4/2017, Hardin Hall Auditorium at 7PM.

Just Eat It is a 74-minute film about food waste and food recovery, and will spread awareness to respecting the hard work of Nebraska agriculturalists by finishing our food and responsibly disposing of it, which also benefits our planet's health. Free for students with N-Card.

LINCOLN ENVIRONMENTAL ARTS FESTIVAL (LEAF)

4/7/2017, Nebraska Innovation Campus - Maker's Studio, 7PM

On the first Friday of April, Earthstock will collaborate with the students and faculty of UNL's Hixson-Lied College to showcase their artwork at the Maker's Studio on Nebraska's Innovation Campus. All artwork displayed will have environmental elements, promoting our mission through visual representations of sustainability.

POETRY READING WITH TWYLA HANSEN

4/12/2017, Union Auditorium at 7PM

Earthstock and the UNL Women's Center welcome Nebraska State Poet and UNL alumna Twyla Hansen to share her poetry inspired by the natural world. This event will relate the humanities to environmental sustainability.

EARTHSTOCK MUSIC FESTIVAL

4/14/2017, The BAY, 8PM

In addition to sharing the planet as a source of life, music is one thing that brings us all together. The Earthstock Music Festival will feature local artists whose messages align with that of environmental sustainability and unity. All proceeds will be donated to a local organization in Lincoln that benefits the environment.

CULTIVATING RESILIENT COMMUNITIES PANEL

4/18/2017, Union Auditorium, 7PM

Local leaders from multicultural, faith-based, political, residential, and other Lincoln communities will participate in a facilitated discussion, allowing the audience to brainstorm and share sustainable solutions to Lincoln's problems facing climate change adaptation and mitigation.

EARTH DAY BLOCK PARTY

4/21/2017, Union Plaza & Green Space, 11AM-2PM

The block party is an interactive and inclusive event that will feature several RSOs and local organizations whose missions relate to environmental sustainability. Additionally, programming will include yoga by UNL Campus Recreation, a live DJ, t-shirt screen-printing, a beekeeping demonstration, and more!
